Kentucky Windage

(By P. W.)

You can be "out" of something, but not "plumb out" of it, did you know that? There IS a difference, I learned last weekend at a local restaurant. It happened like this:

Waitress, announcing to rest of help as she started to make a chocolate shake: "Hey, we're out of chocolate syrup."

Another waitress: "Are we plumb out?"

1st Waitress: "I don't know, I'll have to go see." Further discussion was drowned out in the hustle of other business, and I lost track of the proceedings; however, the exchange of remarks had aroused my curiosity.

So when I went up to pay my check, I asked the first waitress how one could be "out" of something, but not "plumb out" of it.

"Oh, that's easy," she smiled. "When we're out of something up here at the counter, we may still have some stored in the back. If we go back in the storeroom and can't find any there either, we're 'plumb out' of it altogether."

"So you don't get worried about being out of something, unless you go back and find out that you're plumb out of it?"

"Yeah, that's it," she nodded. "When we're plumb out, we gotta order some, quick".

Received a nice card over the weekend from Mrs. Mary W. Sturman from way up in Bar Harbor, Maine, in response to our old picture of the Illinois Central depot scene published two weeks ago. Says Mrs. Sturman:

"The picture of the Illinois Central depot in the October 5 issue awakened fond memories that must date back over fifty years! I remember the platform between the tracks caught on fire one day, and that was about fifty-five years ago! Also the photograph of the City National Bank employees and directors is really a credit to Fulton... and the hair-dos were a forecast of 1972."

JOTTINGS from Jo's Notebook

Whotta Life

There are times when I agree with my family and friends that I am on the kooky side when it comes to accepting assignments that I honestly have no business in this wide, wide world undertaking.

Honestly, I don't know why I do it! After each project, all of them volunteer, I say "this is positively the last... never, but never again."

But do you know that for the past two weeks I have commuted to Frankfort to lend what assistance I could to the campaign for Dee Huddleston for Senator?

I never regret saying "yes," with a great deal of enthusiasm, and delve headlong into the project as though my whole life, or somebody else's depended on it. When the particular assignment is completed I am so beat up, so tired and so-out of kilter with my usual routine, (if there is such a thing in my life) I am usually satisfied with what I have done, but look into the future with plans for never anything to do but publish a newspaper, work at home, and enjoy my family.

It never happens. But this time, I think my resolve to take life easier is going to be firm, final and complete.

A Challenging Job

I think I am a real patsy for any task that Governor Wendell Ford asks me to do. I could hardly refuse him this time when I observe how this completely dedicated man, not the most robust guy in the world, has taken to the highways and the by-ways to get Dee Huddleston elected to the United States Senate for Kentucky. Governor Ford, against the advice from his family and his doctors; is putting in some impossible hours campaigning for Huddleston, as are many other Democratic stalwarts.

So I said to myself, if Governor Ford can take time from his busy schedule to help elect a Democratic United States Senator from Kentucky, then so can I.

I flew back into Fulton on this Tuesday

"Stand Up And Be Counted"

(An Editorial by PW)

There is an old axiom that, as well as I can remember, says "Let us all stand for something, otherwise we will fall for nothing".

In our 25 years as publishers of this newspaper, we have taken many determined stands on many matters; those that we have felt were in the public interest, and were right, and needed to be accomplished for the common good. We think what we say, and say what we think, and one thing is pretty certain: on important matters we don't like to pussy-foot around, nor do we have much respect for anyone who does.

The matter of permitting the re-zoning of a vacant lot just off West State Line for parking lot purposes is a matter of concern to all of Fulton, as we see it; on this decision hangs the location of a million-dollar-a-year Supermarket in the community.

Mayor Tripp, who strongly opposes the lot because it is near his back yard, has tried to reduce the matter to the fact that the City would benefit practically none at all from the new store... a few dollars a year in extra tax money. Is this all that a new million-dollar Supermarket means to the community?

Some downtown business leaders seem to be apathetic about the matter and don't even care to vote yea or nay on this question. Is this the way for the community to grow and become a healthier shopping center for the whole area?

The Fulton City Planning Commission heard practically no public dissent at all following its decision not to rezone, and thus deny this firm a location on West State Line, yet there was, and is, strong dissent by a lot of people who simply don't want to stand up and be counted on one side or the other.

Ambulance Service Negotiating With South Fulton For Location

Apparently pleased with the year of service provided Obion County residents by Pre-Med Ambulance Service, the county's Ambulance Authority has extended the firm's contract for another five years.

The county annually pays the company a $39,000 subsidy to operate the service. In addition, the firm makes regular charges to persons who make use of the ambulance service.

Operated by Roy Richardson and Barry Owsley, the firm now maintains three vehicles and will have a new Cadillac ambulance available shortly, a spokesman for the company said.

Currently basing their operations in Union City, the firm is negotiating with South Fulton for the permanent location of an ambulance in that city.

Pre-Med is licensed by the state and their equipment and attendants meet all state and federal requirements, including the stringent new rules concerning training of attendants and availability of special equipment that forced most funeral homes to discontinue ambulance service and led to the many private firms doing business today.

A Pre-Med spokesman said their vehicles contain oxygen, respirators, fracture boards, plastic splints and other diagnostic equipment.

In addition, the ambulances have a radio network that ties them to each other and their base station, plus an alternate channel on which they can communicate with the Union City Police Department and the Obion County Sheriff's Department.

Congressman Ed Jones And Ray Blanton Speak Here

Congressman Ed Jones and Ray Blanton wound up their whirlwind day in Obion County, Saturday, October 14, when they appeared on the shopping center lot in South Fulton from 4 to 5 p.m.

Congressman Jones is running on the Democratic ticket for re-election from West Tennessee, while Ray Blanton is the Democratic candidate running against Howard Baker, the Republican Senator from Tennessee.

K. M. Winston, Ralph Puckett, Harvey Vick and Bill Bennett were some of the group of citizens on hand to welcome and greet the candidates, even though there was a downpour of rain.

A platform had been erected for the speaking, but due to rain the candidates, together with the South Fulton Mayor and other citizens visited the various businesses in South Fulton.

The Obion County Democratic Executive Committee is only supporting the State candidates, Ed Jones, for reelection to Congress, Ray Blanton, for Senator, and Bob Clement, candidate for Public Service Commissioner, according to Ralph Puckett, local precinct chairman.

John Bay To Serve Hickman Residents

John Bay, 28, an optometrist from Dyersburg, Tennessee, will be serving Hickman residents on Wednesday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. starting October 18. He will be commuting from Dyersburg.

Bay will be located on Clinton Street in the building next door to Amberg and Amberg.

The young optometrist graduated from the Southern College of Optometry in Memphis 1969. Since then, he has been in practice with Dr. Kenneth Lewis of Dyersburg.

Bay is married to the former Sarah Miles of Blytheville, Arkansas. For five years Mrs. Bay has been a public health nurse in Dyersburg. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bay of Fulton, owner and manager of Bay Shoe Store.

City Commission Will Be Asked To Reconsider Zoning Appeal

The question of whether or not Fulton wants to invite a million-dollar-a-year Supermarket to locate on West State Line will be dumped squarely into the lap of the City Commission next Monday night, The News learned this week.

The Fulton City Commission will have the final authority to accept or to reject the matter.

The proposition involves the re-zoning of a piece of property just off West State Line on the south side of McDade Street, located behind the present site of the Fina station and the parking lot of the Fulton Discount Store. The E. W. James Supermarket, which seeks to move to an enlarged building on the Kentucky side of the street facing West State Line, requires this area as an auxiliary parking lot for their proposed store, currently doing a million-dollars a year business across the street in Tennessee.

Both the Chamber of Commerce Board and the Jaycees have adopted resolutions asking the Commission to re-zone the lots for parking lots to accommodate the store; the resolutions will be presented Monday night.

Max McDade, representing family interests who own the entire area in question, told The News Wednesday that the many expressions of public support that he had received on the matter has made him decide to make a last-ditch effort to get the proposed parking lot area rezoned for "neighborhood business" and thus retain this large business for the city of Fulton.

The E. W. James firm has already made it clear that the recent removal of the Kentucky sales tax on groceries has made their position across the street in Tennessee untenable, and they would be obliged to relocate elsewhere in Tennessee away from this State Line community. Negotiations are already reported underway in a community well down in the State, The News has learned, but could possibly be stopped if the Kentucky site is invited by the Fulton City Commissioners.

The petition for rezoning of the McDade Street property was presented to the Fulton Planning Commission two weeks ago but turned down by that agency. However, regulations permit an appeal from this action directly to the parent City Commission for review and reconsideration, if such reconsideration is requested.

McDade made it plain this week that he feels that the whole impact of the matter was not fairly considered by the Planning and Zoning group, and that he would thus take it directly to the Fulton City Commission for final verdict.

The McDade interests indicate that they are willing to "work rezoned" residential property owners in the area to beautify the lot and even screen it from the rest of the area if necessary; they have also stated that they would guarantee that none of

Ouida Jewell Joins News As News Editor

Ouida Jewell, long-time correspondent of the Paducah Sun-Democrat, has joined the Fulton County News as News Editor, according to Publisher Paul Westpheling.

Miss Jewell previously was News Editor of The News in 1951, and from 1958 to 1962 she served in that capacity for both The News and Radio WFUL. She resigned in 1962 to join the staff of Harry Lee Waterfield's then new insurance company, Investors Heritage. Last year, she was employed by Mr. Waterfield's Clinton newspaper, The Gazette, where she had previously been employed.

The veteran newspaperwoman was employed as News Editor of The Fulton Daily Leader for about eleven years, prior to 1958, and before that had her own program on Radio WENK, Union City, Tennessee.

Miss Jewell has written for several metropolitan newspapers, wire services and magazines.

She is a graduate of Fulton High School and attended George Washington University at Washington, D. C., and the University of Tennessee, Martin. She has also studied through the Extension Department of Murray State University.

Miss Jewell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Jewell, Carr Street, Fulton.

RETURNS TO AREA

Clement Hicks, who has been employed in Detroit for the past many years working in the automobile sales business, and business activities of the area has returned to the area to live.

He is staying with his mother at Pilot Oak, and working in Mayfield at an auto mobile agency.

Mrs. Ramelle Pigue

Mrs. Ramelle Pigue Is "Woman Of The Year"

Mrs. Ramelle Pigue, a well-known Fulton woman, has been chosen "Woman of the Year" for the Fulton-South Fulton Business and Professional Woman's Club.

The local club's selection was announced at its Tuesday night dinner-meeting, "Bosses Night", at the First United Methodist Church.

The attractive Mrs. Pigue is very active in the social, civic and business activities of the area to town.

She is a charter member of the local B&PW Club and has served in the following capacities: secretary, one term, vice-president, one term, president, three terms, finance chairman, four terms, public relations chairman, serving her fourth term at present, and chairman of the National Heart fund drive, sponsored by the B&PW, four years.

Mrs. Pigue has also served as chairman of the annual Christmas Home Tour, sponsored by the B&PW for six years. She was a district director of the club for one term and won the state's highest district award, "The Traveling Gavel".

Also, she was a state nominee.

today is not ignorance, but what people know, what is not so."

Governor Wendell Ford presented the senator and spoke briefly. Also, speaking briefly was Dee Huddleston.

Some others attending from this area were H. G. Shaw and Turner Davie of Hickman.

During the reception, Gov. Ford told several of the groups in the crowd about a promise that he did not make during the campaign, but made during the Banana Festival to Kendred Winston of Fulton-South Fulton and Dukedom, U. S. A., about widening the State Line Road from 18 to 22 feet and the letting of a contract for one-half of it by Aug. 31. The Governor laughed, saying he kept the promise, had the road widened and let the contract on Aug. 31 to McDade Construction Company.

It makes me sad to learn that the old Fulton High School building on Second Street is to be demolished. I don't like to see good old buildings torn down, nor beautiful, old trees destroyed.

I do wish that the old Opry House on Main Street could remain standing and be made into a museum, or community center, or something. I have a fondness for that place, especially since I visited there and wrote about it several years ago.

Bids are to be let for the demolishing of the old school building on October 30 at 2 p.m. in the office of the Superintendent of Schools.

Wonder when the Park Terrace Restaurant will be built back? I miss the place. The fire cut down on my places to go. And it

We were pleased to learn that Karen Rice, our former front-office gal, bookkeeper, proofreader, ad-taker, page-paster-upper, headline-writer, emergency typesetter and columnist is now working for the Gazette in Phoenix, Ariz.

Karen is a bright young gal who was with us for the last two years and who moved to Arizona last month. She has started out in the classified ad department of the Gazette—one of the better papers in the West—and she has the intelligence and the ability to become manager of the whole department.

It is also gratifying to note that another of our alumna, little Dona Martin—who worked for us and the Festival this past summer—is already getting by-line stories in the College News at Murray, where she is a wee freshman. That's pretty good for a freshman, but Dona is pretty good too!

And, while I am on the subject, I might as well mention that our son Paul is now newsman-announcer at Radio KXRX in San Jose, Calif. Paul left Honolulu in September to take the job at San Jose, and says he is with a fine station, in a fine area of the San Francisco bay, and loves his job. He reportedly has another love in the area, and we are going out there to visit them in a few days.

morning, dashed to Hickman and, fortunately for me, the Courier staff in Hickman, Doris Harrison, Helen MacLaren, Carol Major, Mike Butts, and Paul and the staff at Fulton had affairs pretty much under control.

A Good Man

But in addition to the time-consuming effort away from my businesses, I feel it quite a privilege to be for Dee Huddleston and do what I can in the interest of his senatorial campaign. I have known Dee since the days when I was in broadcasting and have admired and respected him for nearly 20 years. I particularly like the way he goes about his job seeking the Senate seat.

He's trying with all his heart to make people understand that Kentucky needs somebody who will stand up and speak for the woes of this country in the fields of human resources, the economy, the welfare of the poor and the almost hopeless debt this country finds itself in today.

The National Sales Tax

But most of all I like Huddleston's record as a State Senator when he faced some mighty stiff opposition in taking the sales tax off food, prescription medicine and farm machinery.

Today he is faced with an even more compelling task, if elected, to vote against a national sales tax which is sure to be proposed if President Nixon is elected.

You haven't heard much about a national sales tax as such, because Nixon and the Republicans are calling it a "value-added tax," which anybody in their right mind knows is a national sales tax.

Of course, Congress has to pass the legislation to enact a value-added, or national sales tax, and it is going to take men of courage, men of integrity and men of strong wills to fight and fight hard against another sales tax to the wage-earners of this country.

Dee Huddleston is equal to the task and I do hope that you will give him every consideration with your vote when you go to the polls on November 7.

Such support couldn't happen to a nicer guy. Nor will the affairs of your Federal government be in the hands of a finer, more outstanding and more honest guy than Dee Huddleston... the Democrat for United States Senator.

Believe it or not, in the year 1940, these five women who are all sisters gave birth to children. The new members of the family included four lads and one lass. In order of their birth dates they are: Ermon Workman, born January 9 to Mr. and Mrs. Clint Workman; John Roper Atwill, born March 5 to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Atwill; Richard Samuel (Dick) Bransford, born September 3 and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bransford; Harvey Atwill, born September 13 to the late Mr. and Mrs. Clem Atwill; and last but not least, born on December 22, Miss Rita Ann Workman, daughter of Mrs. J. FULTON'S

Library Corner

BY LUCY DANIEL

Some of the very interesting new books at the Fulton Public Library this week are:

MRS. STARR LIVES ALONE, by Jon Godden. A beautiful old cottage in the English country-side. Surely a place of warmth and pleasantness. But from the very moment Mrs.

Starr opens the front door—nice, proper Mrs. Starr, recently widowed, back from a short holiday in London—it becomes apparent that something is oddly amiss. Can it be merely the fatigue of the train trip, or is there really a faint disarray in the always-so-orderly house?

CHRISTMAS IDEA BOOK, by Farm Journal. THREE books in one. Farm Journal's new Christmas Idea Book lives up to the exciting excellence of the first Christmas Book—and then some. This latest collection of ways to celebrate the Christmas season shows you how to make goodies, gifts and decorations to express your holiday spirit in ways distinctively your own.

WILLINGLY TO SCHOOL, by Hermann Dembeck. In this engagingly-illustrated book the lives and habits of apes, monkeys, horses, dolphins and many other popular performing animals are amusingly related by a man who has been closely associated with circus life for twenty-five years. Rich in anecdotes about curiosities of animal behavior, this book provides numerous insights into little-known facets of animal training and education while dramatizing their impressive capacity for learning tricks and routines of surprising complexity.

THE SECOND KISS, by Gayle Rogers. This book is both a stirring exploration of the world of the American Indian and an epic love story.

Bobby Sam Copeland, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Copeland of near Fulton, is a member of the University of Kentucky football squad this year. He is listed as one of the seven centers on the roster.

doesn't look pretty up on the hill in South Fulton anymore.

I read that the new South Side Manor Apartments are advertising for renters, with the rent ranging from $54.00 to $198.00. What I'm wondering is: How many people in Fulton can afford to pay $198.00 a month for an apartment?

Maybe, there's more rich people around town than I had thought. Of course, the apartments include stove, refrigerator, blinds, and utilities.

If their utilities run as high as ours, then the rent wouldn't be so high, I guess.

Still sounds high, but then everything is outrageously high these days.

I understand that South Fulton's new bypass highway is being black-topped this week.

In looking over the new dress code for Fulton High School, I couldn't see any change in the hair lengths for boys. It sounded the same to me. Maybe not.

One thing that amused me was about the body stockings worn by young ladies. It said that they could be worn under a dress, etc. I don't remember ever seeing anyone wearing a body stocking without having something over the garment... except for dancers on TV.

Saturday night as I took Daddy to work I heard the radio announcer say, "If Jack Spite of Fulton has his card punched, he has won $300." It was at an IGA store.

I hurriedly called Jack Speight for I was sure that was what the announcer meant. His line was busy. Finally, I got him on the line.

Yes, he had just received a call, but he had no card. He hadn't bought any groceries at an IGA. He was sure his wife hadn't either, although she was out of town, Jack said.

Jack said that he was told that if he would drop by the store (I think it was at Union City) he could pick up a $3.00 gift certificate. Jack is puzzled as to how they got his name.

Newt Ruddle brought me back an unusual and very old souvenir from his recent trip to Boston, Mass., and other New England historical spots.

It is a sliver off the tombstone of William Bradford, one of the Pilgrims who came over on the Mayflower.

Ran into the Ezelle sisters out at the Holiday Inn one day recently. Their father, Mr. Little Ezelle of Clinton, passed away early last week.

We had an enjoyable time recalling the days, back in the '30's when we lived out in the Shiloh Community in Hickman County. We were living on my Grandmother Jewell's farm at the time, and Mr. Ezelle owned the country grocery store there. For a while, Daddy drove his peddlin' wagon, then later the grocery truck. Daddy's cousin, Vernon Jewell used to work in the store, and he would give me great big sacks of candy for a penny or two, or an egg or two.

The Ezelle sisters were some older than I, but that didn't matter to the two younger ones, Dorothy and Nellie. We had many interesting experiences, such as falling off a horse, on a little bridge; and smoking homemade cigars Daddy made for us, and Dorothy and Nellie getting deathly sick. The oldest girl, Marcelle (I believe that's the way her name is spelled) was a bit of a growly for the rest of us. She teaches in L. A. now and lives in Bel-Air. Nellie and Dorothy live at Clinton.

Instead of teaching, Marcelle is principal of a large school in L. A. now, she said.

Also, met Marcelle's husband and Dorothy's beautiful daughter from Atlanta, Ga.

Daddy has often said that the only thing he remembers about his father, who died when he was three, was the funeral. Daddy said that he was crying and Mr. Ezelle, who operated the Springhill grocery at the time, took him to his store and gave him some candy.

It was a real pleasure for Mother and me to chat with The Ezelle sisters.

Ann Landers

—Your Problems Bring Answers—

Dear Ann Landers: Sorry, I don't agree with your comments to the wife who informed her husband that she gets the most out of their lovemaking when she pretends he's someone else. You said everyone fantasizes to a certain degree and it's nothing to become unglued about--it's the same as daydreaming at night.

If a wife has to think about Ryan O'Neal when she's with her husband the least she can do is keep her mouth shut. I would not be very flattered if I discovered that the reason my husband was having such a great time was because he was pretending I was somebody else. If he confessed such a thing to me I'd tell him that if I wasn't excited enough he could go find someone who was.

We hear too much these days about weirdos, switch-hitters, wife-swapping, peep-shows, naked men in centerfolds, and kooky sex practices. What we need in this country is a champion for decency and morality. I had hoped it would be you, Ann Landers. Sorry you let me down.--No Substitutes Needed

Dear No Sub: The human mind is such an intricate piece of machinery that no one can say exactly how it operates, particularly in the area of sexual responses. What turns a person on is a mysterious mix of everything he ever saw, read, heard and dreamed about, plus assorted bits and pieces, so private they are shared with no one. Not everyone can tolerate complete openness and frank talk. So, I agree with you, honey, some people SHOULD keep their mouths shut.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I clipped my favorite column and carried it in my wallet until it is just barely legible.

You called it "How To Get Through The Day," and it helped me more than anything I have ever read in my life. Will you play it again, Sam?--Linda

Dear Linda: With pleasure. Just for today I will live through the next 12 hours and not tackle my whole life problem at once. Just for today I will improve my mind. I will learn something useful. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will be agreeable. I will look my best, be courteous and considerate.

Just for today I will not find fault with friend, relative or colleague. I will not try to change or improve anyone but myself.

Just for today I will have a Sex--Ten Ways To Cool It." program. I might not follow Send 50¢ in coin and a long, it exactly, but I will have it, self-addressed, stamped envelope. I will save myself from two lope to this newspaper.

enemies--hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will exercise my character in three ways. I will do a good turn and keep it a secret.

If anyone finds out, it won't count.

Just for today I will do two things I don't want to do, just for exercise.

Just for today I will be unafraid. Especially will I be unafraid to enjoy what is beautiful and believe that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play change or improve anyone but yourself. Just for today I will have a Sex--Ten Ways To Cool It." program. South Fulton To Receive $26,754 Under Revenue Sharing

U. S. Senator Howard Baker announced today that South Fulton should receive $26,754 under the revenue sharing legislation recently approved by Congress.

Senator Baker said that the funding is retroactive to January 1, 1972, and that the checks for the first six months' share should arrive later this month. Another payment will be forthcoming in November and the final installment for 1972 in January. Thereafter, the payments will be made directly to the city and county on a quarterly basis.

Tennessee cities and counties will share in a total of $65.6 million in revenue this year while the state government's share is $32.8 million.

Revenue sharing, simply stated, is a program to distribute a portion of the federal government's tax revenues to state and local governments. This distribution will be to the greatest degree possible, on a "no strings attached" basis.

The allocations were compiled on three points, (1) population, (2) per capita income, and (3) local tax effort. Lessening of any of the three, including the lowering of tax effort would lower the amount the area would receive. Half of the amount the city is to receive could come the later part of October, and the rest would come quarterly.

As explained that day, there would really be no strings attached, except (1) it could not be used as matching funds for federal money, nor could (2) it be used in a discriminatory program. The federal department will publish regulations, but the speaker stated that the money received would have to be deposited in a completely separate trust fund, and separate records would have to be maintained to how the money is spent. It could be separate budget, or a replacement of some fund in the present budget.

"The main thing we don't want to do is build in a program that will have to pay for, if revenue sharing quits," South Fulton City Commissioner has not yet received all necessary material to make a study, nor to make any plans, Mr. Winston said.

Open House

The Carr Elementary School will have open house, Monday night, October 23, 1972. The school will be open from 7:00 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. All parents are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served in cafeteria following visitation.

fresh clean ELECTRICITY DOES IT BEST!

the heat pump will spoil you

(fresh, clean electricity powers it)

Imagine not having to switch from a heating system to a cooling system when the seasons change. You don't with the electric heat pump. It does its own switching with one setting of the thermostat, giving you the comfort level you want in all seasons. It's enough to spoil you for all other heating and cooling systems.

Its installation cost is a bit higher than other systems, but its operating cost is enough to spoil you, too. It's much lower than separate systems.

Investigate the electric heat pump for your home, then call us for estimates and a layout for its installation. It's a nice way to be spoiled!

FLIGHT SOUTH

It was only a faint sound at first, but it grew louder and louder. Then I knew what it was and rushed from the house.

High overhead, dark against the bright autumn sky, a flight of geese winged instinctively toward the south. Large wings flapped in graceful rhythm, and raucous honks of conversation brought a nostalgic ache to my throat.

"Bon voyage," I called, saluting with my whole heart the brave creatures who flew so unswervingly through uncharted skies.

And I wondered at us humans. How we doubt and fear and flail about, worrying about tomorrow and a dozen other somethings! Our course is not unknown. God promises abundant life if we but follow Him.

Your church is your guidebook to God. Worship there and find the security that comes from within, the result of understanding God and one's relationship to Him.

News Editor Tells Students What Newspaper Work Is Like

By Ouida Jewell

Miss Jewell, news editor of The News, spoke to the South Fulton High School journalism class Thursday afternoon, telling the students what working for a newspaper is really like. She was invited by the teacher, Mrs. Ada McCoy. Miss Jewell's speech, in part, follows.

Newspaper work is a very interesting profession—in a class all its own. There's really no other job quite like it, and if once you get started in newspaper work, it is so fascinating it is hard to break away and do any thing else. It's not all fun, though! You really have to work very hard—that is, if you do your job well. And, you really never know what might take place next. One minute, someone may be praising you to high heaven, while in the very next instance, another person may be telling you off. But, there is really more of the good, than of the bad.

One thing, that a lot of people don't understand is, that being news editor on a small newspaper doesn't always mean that a person does nothing but gather, write and edit the news. For there are times when you are doing everything, but. For instance, you might be selling ads, reading proofs, working on printing jobs, delivering papers, or a number of other things. In my case, when I worked at The News and Radio WFUL as news editor before, in 1958-1962, there was also my radio news to write, and on Wednesday evenings, there was helping with the makeup in the back shop. I'm now learning how to make-up with off-set—something new to me. Being a newspaperwoman is sorta like being a combination preacher-teacher-lawyer, for people in all walks of life come to you, from time to time, with their problems. So, you have at least to like people a little, to get along.

Then too, a newspaperman needs to be a sensible and honest person. A person without these qualities does not last long in the news profession—especially, if he is working for someone else—for the facts, as far as they are known, should be published at all times. You can't afford to make mistakes too often.

To be a good newspaperman a person also has to be a little crazy. And, too, your work hours never end. You are really on duty twenty-four hours a day.

Writing for several newspapers and a couple of wire services at the same time, with all having different rules and styles, really gets confusing and runs into a lot of work. This is what I did for about twenty years.

All newspapers, the small-town dailies and weeklies and the metropolitan papers—and the wire services—have their own rules and styles. For instance, one metropolitan newspaper with circulation in Fulton, does not use the name of the minister in death notices, while another does not use the name of the funeral home unless the funeral is to be held there, while still another wants all the information.

Of course, all newspapers and wire services agree on one thing, that a well written news story always contains the five essentials—WHO, WHAT, WHY, WHEN, WHERE.

Another thing which applies to all good newspapers is that news space is not for sale—if a story is worth printing they want it. If a picture is newsworthy they print it—but they will not be paid to get an inch of a story in the paper.

A large wire service gives this advice to its new reporters: "There are no hard and fast rules for reporting news. Sound judgment, good taste and common sense will dictate the answer to most of your questions."

STAND UP

community were not founded on such principles: the people who founded were people who fought and stood for something, and that is just as true today as it was two centuries ago.

So let us get to the matter in question.

The City of Fulton hasn't gained a thousand population in the last 50 years, while its neighbors all around are gaining rapidly. We are right now in the midst of a mighty struggle to achieve commercial equality with Martin, Union City and Mayfield and we are not gaining in the race.

Fulton is, however, a good and recognized marketing center for food. We have three large supermarkets, but the Kentucky Legislature has dealt a powerful blow to the two of them that are located in South Fulton. The E. W. James store has already indicated that it cannot continue under the new tax differential, and the owner of the Liberty Supermarket in South Fulton, interviewed before October 1st by the Paducah Sun-Democrat, stated that he "had another two-years to run on his lease" but would not comment further. The prospect of having no food tax in Kentucky, which surfaced last year with the then-candidates for Governor, reportedly caused him to cancel a major store expansion he had planned this year.

Our strong contention is that if Fulton is going to even hold the commercial attractiveness that it now has, it is going to have to fight for it, and the E. W. James Supermarket is the heart of the matter today. With it we inch forward; without it, we inch backward.

The McDade family has invested heavily in commercial real estate in both Fulton and South Fulton, yet is understandably reluctant to indulge in any hot controversy. They are principally in the business of building roads, not making retail sales. They own the A&P building, the E. W. James building, the Fulton Discount building, the Fina property and much more not directly related to today's matters.

So the point is this: If the retail business leaders of Fulton want to preserve the business climate of the community it is up to them to fight for what they have and what they want. With the exception of this newspaper, the McDades have pretty much done it alone.

The Fulton City Commissioners expect to hear expressions from businessmen on business matters of this sort; failing any volume of strong expressions, they assume there are none and act accordingly.

If downtown-on-Lake-Street businessmen are a little smug with the fact that they have already a major grocery at their back door, they are being a little short-sighted; failure to maintain West State Line as the near-downtown business corridor that it is, will only give strong encouragement to development of a new suburban shopping center in the near future.

At this point I would like to mention that we are in no way fighting A&P; we had a vital, initial part in persuading A&P not to abandon Fulton just before the McDades built their new building for them several years ago.

It was not assumed that the Fulton Planning and Zoning Commission would seriously consider any rezoning; the general sentiment was that the majority of the Commission was "stacked against the matter" from the beginning. Mind you, I did not say ALL... just the majority.

Yet is to the credit of determined members of the Chamber of Commerce Executive Board, as well as the Jaycees membership, that these two organizations have gone on record as endorsing the zoning change for the benefit of the community.

So we are whatever we want to make of ourselves as a community. If we want to progress, we ALL have to fight for progress, an a major issue is before us this week.

If you favor the location of this million-dollar supermarket here in Fulton, I URGE you to express yourself to Commissioners J. D. Hales, or Paul Kasnow, or Bob Craven, or Charles Robert Bennett today. These men will have to make a final decision Monday night when the matter comes up before their meeting, and I would hope that they will lay any personal considerations aside and rule in favor of the well-being of the community they have been elected to represent.

South Fulton's junior varsity, with "something to prove to themselves," turned the trick Thursday night, beating Union City Middle School 24-10.

The Devils forfeited four victories Tuesday, when it was discovered they had inadvertently used an ineligible player.

Union City scored first in the opening period on a four-yard run by Jimmy Scales, with Dale Logan adding the points for an 8-0 lead. South Fulton came back with a pair of touchdowns, however, before the frame ended to get a 12-8 lead.

The scores were on a 30-yard run by Carl Minor and a 40-yard burst up the middle by Billy Wilson. Both tries for points failed.

Wilson went 35 yards on an option in the second period for an 18-8 score at half.

It was Wilson again for 50 yards in the fourth period to make it 24-6.

Union City drove to the Devil four late in the game but surrendered the ball on downs.

After South Fulton took over, a Twister defender trapped a Devil in his own end zone for a safety, adding two more points to their total.

A Shortage Of Children Is Slowing
The Adoption Process In Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A few years ago, a Kentucky couple wishing to adopt a child had little trouble in doing so.

But things have changed.

Today an adoptive couple in Kentucky may wait one or two years to receive a child, if indeed they ever receive one.

Adoption workers in the state Department of Child Welfare say the turn-about started five years ago when adoption became more socially popular and the number of people desiring to adopt began rising, at least partially because of the influence of groups urging families to have only two natural children, and a corresponding rise in the number of men having vasectomies.

Then, about three years ago, the number of children available to be placed for adoption began declining, due to more effective means of contraception and the availability of legal abortions as well as the lessening of the stigma against single mothers who decide to keep their babies.

The result, obviously, is too many homes and not enough kids. Last year, for instance, Child Welfare finalized adoption for 566 children.

This year, however, the department already has 634 approved homes waiting for a child, 250 homes under study to determine if they are suitable for adoption and 1000 homes waiting for a study.

Even with this overabundance of homes though, the department placed 57 children out-of-state last year through referral agencies.

Why the discrepancy?

Well, most people wishing to adopt want the same kind of child—a white infant. The older a child is, the harder he is to place. A handicapped, retarded, biracial or black child is also considered hard to place.

Although many families are willing to adopt a "hard-to-place" child—Sue Howard, Child Welfare's adoption specialist, said 16 to 20 per cent of approved adoptive applicants have indicated they would be willing to adopt such a child—some hard-to-place children are harder to place than others.

Mrs. Howard said a severely retarded child is almost impossible to place. Black children present a particular problem since few whites want to adopt a black in Kentucky, and there are just not enough black families known to the agency who are willing to adopt.

Tom Massie, director of Child Welfare's community services division, isn't pleased with the situation because he feels the department has been lax in recruiting black homes primarily because adopter workers have such a heavy caseload just keeping up with those who have asked to have their homes approved for adoption.

Massie said, "Less effort is made to find a black home in Kentucky for a black child than is made to place the child out of state," and added, "the opportunity should be provided the citizens of Kentucky to adopt a child before we place him out of state."

Besides, he said, most of the black children placed out of state are placed with white families. While Massie says he is not opposed to placing black youths in white homes he feels a black family can offer a black child more empathy and strength in coping with the everyday realities of racism than a white family.

Massie said he is in the process of developing a program to find black homes in Kentucky for black children and is convinced it will be an "immediate success. There are already a lot of adoptions in the black community," he said, "but they are informal adoptions."

He said if blacks became more familiar with the department's adoption process and if the department can manage to dispel the mistaken notion some blacks have that adoption is expensive, then there will be no problem.

finding blacks homes. In the meantime, families wishing to adopt a white infant have a long wait in store for them while over half of the hard-to-place children continue to be placed out of state.

tly filled by Ronald A. Finch of Memphis, which is designed to bridge the gap between employers and students.

The new position, titled director of placement and career counseling, carries a number of practical responsibilities which range from individual conferences with students on possible vocations to arranging on-campus interviews with companies seeking college employees.

"A number of students are undecided on careers and counseling helps them find a direction in their academic pursuits toward a life's work," said Finch, who previously served for two years as the administrative assistant to the vice president for academic affairs at Memphis State University.

Finch added that his office would also be involved in wage-salary research to analyze which jobs were yielding the highest earnings in the United States and manpower studies to locate the fields that were open for students seeking work.

At present, the services of the placement and career counseling office will remain on a voluntary basis, although students may be referred there by teachers or advisors, Finch said.

Actor Hal Riddle, Will Lead Homecoming Parade

MURRAY, Ky., Oct. 14—Very few people know by the time they are seven years of age what they want to do in life, but Hal Riddle did. He wanted to become an actor, and he did.

A 1942 graduate of Murray State Teachers College, as it was known in those days, Riddle has since appeared in scores of stage, screen and television productions.

He will return to the Murray State campus Friday and Saturday to serve as master of ceremonies at a theatre arts reunion which is part of the university's 50th Anniversary Homecoming observance.

Saturday morning he will ride through downtown Murray as the Grand Marshal of the traditional Homecoming Parade.

Although Riddle, who now lives in Los Angeles, Calif., grew up in Fulton, Mayfield, and Murray while his father worked as commercial manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company ofices in those cities, it was in Dawson Springs when he was seven years old that he became stage-struck.

"I knew I was hooked when I played 'Peter Rabbit' in a school pageant," he recalls. "Then I saw my first motion picture that same, seventh year, and I knew I was going to Hollywood some day. The picture was 'The Life of Jesse James,' the silent version."

Thirty years later, via school plays, high school plays in Fulton, Sock and Buskin Club productions at Murray State, four years of Naval Intelligence and 11 years of theatrical work in New York, he reached Hollywood for his first picture.

His big break came in a summer stock role with John Caradine in the stage play "Twentieth Century." Then came other roles, each successively larger, in "Dark of the Moon," "Curse You, Jack Dalton," and others including the character lead in "George Washington Slept Here."

His roommate that first year was a young actor who was the juvenile lead for the summer, Jack Lemmon.

"The talent that was to make Jack a world-wide favorite early evidenced itself," he recalls, "and he was called back to New York to start a television career which later led to his Broadway career and eventually to motion pictures."

When Lemmon left the company, it was Riddle who inherited his roles in the three plays remaining on the schedule, and he returned to New York that fall to be one of 250 out of 5,000 aspiring actors accepted for training at the Neighborhood Playhouse School of the Theatre.

"At the Playhouse, they told me that if I did not show a marked improvement in overcoming my Kentucky accent after the first year, I would not be invited back for the second year," he remembers, "for the only way one made it back to the second year was by invitation."

"Needless to say, I worked like a Trojan, and was one of the lucky ones to be invited back. We were not allowed to work in any acting jobs during those two years, for it was a full-time, five-days-a-week school with the full treatment—acting, improvisation, dancing, fencing, voice, speech, music, makeup and scenes plus two full presenttations a year for outsiders."

Upon graduation from the Playhouse in 1950, Riddle began "my long winter of pounding the pavements of old Broadway," but in December landed the part of the Shore Patrol lieutenant in the classic play, "Mister Roberts."

"And what did the young Shore Patrol lieutenant have to have?" he recalls. "A deep authentic southern accent!"

FULTON, Ky. — The cities of Fulton, Ky., and South Fulton, Tenn., annually put on a banana pudding festival with a giant banana pudding made to feed 10,000 people. Disaster Survey Completed

Union City and Obion County are currently "not well prepared" to cope with a major disaster, according to officials of the federal and state Civil Defense program who have just completed a two-week survey here.

While acknowledging that "there are a lot of potential resources here with which to develop an adequate civil preparedness program," the officials said the survey indicated that, if a major disaster should occur here, the community is currently not prepared to cope with it.

Eleven College Interns Learning Government

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Eleven Kentucky college students from across the state are currently filling state government positions as participants in the Frankfort Administrative Internship program.

The internship is a work-study program designed to attract outstanding college students to careers in Kentucky state government.

The seven-month internship combines a well-structured academic program with actual work experience in a department or agency of state government. Students earn 15 hours academic credit under the program.

Work assignments are located in Frankfort and the academic portion of the program is administered by Kentucky State University. The program is designed to give participants an overview of government and its inner-workings.

"By combining practical on-the-job working experience with related classroom studies, the interns will receive a learning experience that they cannot obtain on campus," said Dr. Robert Sexton, coordinator of student and academic programs, Department of Personnel.

Nominees for the program, initially selected by college campus coordinators, are chosen on the basis of academic superiority and leadership ability. Final appointments are made by a selection committee of state officials and college faculty members which interviews all applicants.

Internships are open to all undergraduates on the junior or senior level from any Kentucky college or university.

Students in the program are: Joyce Albrow, Fairdale, Eastern Kentucky University; William Barr, Owensboro, Brescia College; Carolyn Halsell, Louisville, University of Louisville; Christopher Helvey, Corbin, Cumberland College; John M. Koelsch, Lexington, University of Kentucky.

Julie Lippy, Louisville, EKU; Leonard Matheny, Fort Campbell, Western Kentucky; Nora McCormick, Louisville, Bellarmine College; Don Meade, Paintsville, EKU; Alfonso Sherald, Frankfort, Kentucky State University; and Betreca Stringer, Monticello, Berea College.

Bowling Green House Named

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The Kentucky Heritage Commission has announced the placement of Bowling Green's Maria Moore House on the National Register of Historic Places.

The brick structure is the oldest house still standing in the city and is on the site of the original Moore home. The brothers George and Robert Moore founded Bowling Green.

According to Warren County courthouse records, the house was built in 1828 by Elizabeth Moore, widow of George Moore. Elizabeth Moore and her daughter, Maria, occupied the house until the mother's death in 1862. Maria Moore continued to live there until her death in 1888.

It was during the period of Maria's solitary existence in the house that it became known as the "Maria Moore House."

The National Register, maintained by the National Park Service of the United States Department of the Interior, regularly designates such historically distinguished structures as worthy of preservation.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Too Old to Drive?

As auto accidents go, Mrs. Martin's collision with another car was nothing special. But soon afterward, bad news arrived in the mail.

"Your driver's license has been revoked," said a notice from the Traffic Bureau.

Mrs. Martin, an ardent motorist, decided to put up a fight. Challenging the Traffic Bureau in court, she pointed out that the collision was in no way her fault.

"Even so," countered a Bureau spokesman, "this woman has already passed her 77th birthday. That alone is enough basis for us to revoke her license."

But the court disagreed. Ordering the license restored, the court said advanced years alone are not enough reason to take away a person's right to drive.

Most traffic laws say that officials may revoke the license of anyone unfit to handle a car. But they may not classify a person as unfit without good grounds. Even a physical disability may not be enough to disqualify a driver if the disability can be kept under adequate control.

For example: A man had diabetes. But his condition was such that the possibility of insulin shock was slight. And if shock did occur, it would give him enough warning to allow him to pull over to the curb. A court held that his license could not be revoked.

Another man occasionally suffered from double vision. But he could clear it up instantly just by shutting one eye. His license, too, was held not subject to revocation.

However, a court refused similar help to a woman afflicted by heart trouble, high blood pressure, and partial paralysis on one side. Seeking to have her license restored, she recalled that she had driven for 30 years without an accident.

But the court, noting the very real possibility of sudden trouble, said her good driving in the past was no guarantee against bad driving in the future. As one judge put it:

"The purpose is not punishment of the driver but the protection of the public."
